Uchikostored in: Food

I would say 'finally' but we still have to wait another year! Uchiko, translated to mean child of Uchi, is opening up summer 2010 at 42nd and Lamar in the old Seton Hospital Office Building. After 6 years of Uchi in business, Tyson Cole is ready for expansion. Expect the same quality and food but with a few changes. Uchiko will be divided into 2 separate rooms, one for walk in customers, and the second for reservations only. Both rooms will have the full Uchi menu and bar seating. As he did for Uchi, Michael Hsu will transform the space into something spectacular. I'm interested to see how this will play out with two locations. Will the quality be as high? Will the staff be as perfect? Will diners be more willing to go since a wait can be avoided? Are North Austinites just as happy with Mushashino and Mikado? Only time will tell! I am just down the street from the new spot so I am greatly anticipating the opening!
